

STARGAZER

Listen to the music of the stars, for they have much to tell
The music has no end, it goes on and on into infinity
An enchanting melody, solace for the soul

Upon a moonlit star, I travel down to touch your cheek as you slumber
You are unaware of the stardust, I sprinkle upon your dreaming eyes.
You awaken with the memory of countless sunrises, lights upon the sky.
Remember the time that we danced across the milky way? Just you and I, laughing at life's folly?
We have no need of trivial sorrow, we follow a higher calling, you and I a gentle wind spirits us away to the promise of another day.

(c) Mary Ann Hale July 7, 2016